Frequently Asked Questions

Do I need approval before booking business travel?

Yes. All business travel must be approved before tickets or accommodation are booked.

Can I upgrade my flight?

Personal upgrades are allowed only if the employee pays the additional cost. Company reimbursement is limited to the approved travel class.

What hotel category should I book?

Employees should use company-approved hotels and remain within the prescribed accommodation limits unless an exception is approved.

Are meals reimbursed?

Yes. Employees are eligible for meal allowances or reimbursement as defined by the approved travel budget and policy.

Can I claim expenses without receipts?

Receipts are required for most expenses. Exceptions may be considered only in limited circumstances with appropriate approval and explanation.

How long do I have to submit expense claims?

Expense claims should be submitted within 10 working days after completing the business trip.

Can I combine personal travel with a business trip?

Yes, with prior approval. Any additional personal expenses must be borne by the employee and should not be included in the reimbursement claim.

Who approves international travel?

International travel requires approval from the Reporting Manager, Department Head, and any additional approvers specified by company policy.

What happens if my travel plans change?

Notify your Reporting Manager and the Travel Coordinator immediately. Updated bookings or cancellations should be made through approved channels.

For queries not covered in this FAQ, contact your HR Business Partner or the Finance Team for guidance.
